Three orphaned calves born at the Large Animal Teaching Hospital at the University of Illinois have succumbed to bacterial pneumonia. The newborns were delivered on Wednesday and remained with a caretaker until early Monday, when they were taken to the UI College of Veterinary Medicine, where they were diagnosed and treated for bacterial pneumonia. They were said to have been taken off of life support Tuesday evening and died overnight, according to the article in the UI News. These are the first two cases of bovine corona viruses (BCoVs) to be diagnosed at the UI College of Veterinary Medicine since 2011, when two calves were diagnosed with BCoV infections at Purdue University and transported to the UI College of Veterinary Medicine.

Fitness industry heats up with more than a dozen big exercise brands competing for your dollars The meeting room at a Chicago hotel was packed full of hundreds of fitness enthusiasts, many of whom had been up for hours to attend a fitness conference. New numbers from the American College of Sports Medicine show that more than 50% of exercise professionals in the United States have received fitness or health information about the new "Big 12" brands, according to a recent study sponsored by FitnessWise. "The study is a big deal for all of us. It's not a question that's on my radar screen in terms of endorsement opportunities or anything like that," says Dani Eslake, CTA, a coach, owner of Toronto area-based Exelman Training Systems and co-founder of Fit Club Fitness. "But it's a wakeup call. We've seen people talk about this in the industry for the past two years, so you just feel like you're maybe late to the party. But this is the party," he adds. The league includes a dozen popular fitness brands that are no longer selling over-the-counter products and have changed their business model to a membership-based model. There are also three new brands in the group - EvaGym, Fit4Less, and Fitnessology - and two that are no longer active - Medifast (formerly Paula Deen Nutrition) and Personal Fitness (formerly Jillian Michaels) For instance, EvaGym joins Crunch, At The Beach, the Iron Yard, Perfect Body, Core Power, and other hard-core fitness brands. "We all know the growing popularity of exercise, but it's been

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop CC 2015 Version 18?

Q: Does 'abracadabra' have a grammatical function in 'I'm late, I'm late, to meet the deadline'? As in 'I'm late, I'm late, to meet the deadline'. Does the word have any function? It looks as if it might be used as filler in conversation, but I can't think of an example. Thanks in advance, toby A:

"Abracadabra" is an idiom, a magic word used for conjuring something up that isn't actually there. It isn't grammatically part of the sentence it's in, though the writer may be using it for emphasis. In the context of your video, it's a rhetorical device, meant to make the listener think of something silly, (cabalistic magic) not reality. In this case, something so absurd that it might even make sense. You are not signed in as a Premium user; we rely on Premium users to support our news reporting. Sign in or Sign up today! DETROIT (ChurchMilitant.com) - The Detroit Public Schools are being sued for a law they voted to pass, and three Michigan parents are suing for organizing a nonviolent occupation in the school. Lawmakers in Lansing passed a school-choice bill in June that allows families to enroll in charter schools and to send their children to religious schools. It passed the state Senate with a 54-46 vote. It will now go before the Michigan House of Representatives, and there is already a House bill to repeal it. The Michigan Coalition for Educational Rights (MCER) and the Michigan Association of School Administrators (MASA) sued the Detroit Public Schools and state Superintendent Mike Flanagan in federal court on July 26. They allege that the charter-school law violates the Equal Protection and Due Process clauses of the Constitution. In a complaint filed by Michigan attorney Gilbert Soforth, three Michigan parents (who had their names changed) are also suing state and Detroit Public Schools Superintendent Mike Flanagan and then-Detroit Public Schools Board of Education President David Hewitt for "organizing an unlawful occupation of" Detroit's Marygrove College, St. Helena and God
