On Tuesday, the agency is scheduled to launch the first of the upgrades this summer. The most visible of those is the construction of new track and signal systems that are expected to improve the safety of the subway's 3.6 million daily users. The upgrades were expected to cost $40 million per mile when it was first announced in 2009, and each of the 1.7 million miles of additional track and signal will cost $3 million per mile once complete, according to the agency.. 18. 19. 20.
